Actors develop temporal action strategies to pursue policy preferences. Policy timing is the strategic use of time periods and points in time and not dependent on focusing events as argued by leading policy theories. This alternative concept is tested by means of security reforms adopted after 9/11.

European Neighbourhood Policy

A Comparative Analysis of Germany, France and Poland

By Dr. Christine Normann

2014, 564 pp., pb., € 89.00

ISBN 978-3-8487-1415-5

www.nomos-shop.de/22722

Analysing the influence of EU member states on European Neighbourhood Policy, this study firstly refers to the European and regional identities of the selected EU member states, Germany, France and Poland. Secondly, it focuses on their different regional concepts – the European Ostpolitik of Germany, the Mediterranean Union of France and the Eastern Partnership of Poland – and the EU member states' modes of interaction during the European negotiations that took place between 2006 and 2009. Thirdly, it considers the effects of this debate on the ENP. In doing so, it takes into account on-going discussions in the broader European context of deepening and widening the EU, of models of differentiated integration and the question of a European foreign policy. The analysis combines the theories of constructivism, new institutionalism and Europeanisation and is based on a methodological triangulation of discourse analysis and expert interviews.

What do the division between the Orthodox Churches in Ukraine and the current Russian-Ukrainian crisis have in common? Analysing the relevant official documents of the Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church on reconciliation, the author traces how this Church comes to terms with the burdened pages of Ukrainian history and their repercussions for the current struggling of Ukraine on the way to democratisation.

The relations between the Ukrainian Churches, the Polish-Ukrainian and the Russian-Ukrainian relations, the memory of the Jewish presence, and the national cohesion in the country according to the official Church pronouncements constitute the core of the book. An original research in which the reconciliation discourse of the Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church is for the first time analysed in a comprehensive way and brought in conversation with the theologies of Miroslav Volf, Robert Schreier and John Paul Lederach.
